We have been learning about mental health this week. One thing, that is really important for good mental health is getting lots of sleep.

Have a go at making a dream catcher to help you sleep.

The idea is that a dream catcher is hung above someone's bed while they sleep, and during the night bad dreams get trapped in the web so they're unable to reach the dreamer. When the sun rises the next day, those bad dreams disappear. Good dreams, on the other hand, pass through the dream catcher and slide down the feathers to the sleeping person.

You could use a paper plate or cardboard to make your dreamcatcher shape. What things can you find to put on your dreamcatcher, you could colour it in or draw pictures of your favourite things on it. Below is a link to a website which shows you of different ways to make a dreamcatcher:
